

HOPE FOR YEMEN?

ENDING THE WORLD'S WORST HUMANITARIAN CRISIS

Wednesday, April 10th from 12:00–1:30 p.m.
Room 1050, Jenkins Nanovic Halls

Awssan
Kamal

Panelist
Oxfam Int'l

Nawal
al-Maghafi

Panelist
BBC News

Scott
Paul

Panelist
Oxfam America

Ray Offenheiser

Moderator
Oxfam America

The Saudi Arabian–led intervention in Yemen has internally displaced over 2,500,000 Yemeni civilians, according to the UN. In a 2019 report, the UN estimated that “more than 20 million people across the country are food insecure, half of them suffering extreme levels of hunger.” In a 2018 report, UNICEF estimated that “every 10 minutes, a child [in Yemen] is dying from diseases that can be easily prevented.”

Is there hope for peace in Yemen? Why has the “world’s worst humanitarian crisis” received so little coverage in Western, particularly American, media? What should be the future of America’s involvement in the crisis? This interdisciplinary panel, featuring leading global experts on this crisis, will explore all of these critical topics and more.

Full event details at ntrda.me/2FAWxml
This event is free and open to the public. Lunch will be served.

Sponsored By:

KEOUGH SCHOOL OF GLOBAL AFFAIRS
Notre Dame Initiative for Global Development